

What is Mine to Do?

Week 5: Pledge

Why is this important?

So far in Lent, we have looked at contributions that might be ours to make right now. This week, we're looking at how we might contribute to justice-seeking in the future, particularly through legacies.

Having an up-to-date will is vitally important to ensure that the people and causes you care about are looked after when you're gone. Continued support with a legacy to All We Can offers transformed futures for global communities that we partner with, allowing lasting impact for generations to come.

Today's action creates tomorrow's future. We believe in relationships, not transactions, and if you choose to share your plans with us, we would love to continue that journey with your family and friends and keep them informed of the impactful change your gift continues to have, even after you are gone.

Is this mine to do?

This is not a form of giving we often think about, especially earlier in life, but legacy giving is an important aspect of how we continue to support our partners and allows you to plan a future that continues to support any causes you care about. People often think that legacies must be large sums of money, but any gift will make a huge difference.

- ? Do you want to leave the world better than you found it?
- ? Do you want to add purpose to your belongings?
- ? Do you trust All We Can to spend your money wisely?
- ? Do you want to leave a positive legacy for the future?

Your will is not just a legal document, but an opportunity to give a gift of enduring love and invest in sustainable change.

How do I do it?

All We Can has partnered with Bequeathed (bequeathed.org/allwecan) who offer a free service, creating a will for good. You can write a new will or use the service to update an existing one.

The process is simple and is well supported by direct contact with a legal professional, but we are also here to help if you have any questions or would like any further support in your decision.

There are many ways to pledge legacy gifts - as money or belongings. Even if you decide to use our free will-writing service and explore these options, there is no obligation to include All We Can in your will.

Who does this help?

Your gift will be used to support our work fighting poverty and transforming lives, wherever the need is greatest.

This could include supporting impactful partners like Rural Human Rights Activists Programme (RHRAP) in Liberia.

RHRAP promote and protect fundamental human rights in Liberia through rule of law, human rights, democracy, and livelihood programmes. They work particularly with rural and mining communities, empowering them to improve their living conditions, tackle the root causes of poverty and inequality, and hold duty-bearers accountable.

Livelihood programmes enhance people's capacity to support themselves. This reduces crime, imprisonment and migration and helps to promote lasting peace.

Yusuf Manneh is a tailor, trained as part of RHRAP's vocational education whilst in prison. He is very passionate about his work and believes it keeps him busy and away from things he does not wish to be involved in. "What I want to see for the future, I just want to see myself as an instructor", he says. "I want to be teaching so that the legacy can continue to grow. That is my vision."

What future do you hope for or envision? For yourself and for generations to come?
